MORTUARY EXTRAVAGANCE .- As a nation, it must be confessed that we are not, in some things, highly distinguished for taste or refined sense, and, that we do not deserve to be. We if the whole truth must be told, with all unquestioned merits, decidedly boorish in regard to some matters. Our greatness helongs rather to the sude, uncultivated strength of nature than to the higher and more graceful power of culture. Our glory is physical rather than moral or spiritual, national rather than individual, political and civil rather than literary or social. In all or nearly all that concerns the essential elegancies of life we are notoriously defective. As a people, we have small polish and less grace. We are sufficiently endowed with public sagacity, with private enterprise and energy, and with the affluence that is their natural reward, but in that wealth of high and exquisite intuitions that makes up the perfection of manhood and womanhood, in a just perception of the fit, the noble, and the heautiful, and in a lively and delicate sensibility to the charms of these qualities, we are poor indeed. We are blessed with material success, and have ahundance of external splendor, but we lack interior fullness and richness, and are sadly wanting in beautiful, harmonious lives. We are prosperous and promising, but insufferably fantastic and puffed up. And the sooner this fact is recognized and fitly appreciated the better for ourselves and for the millions elsewhere whom our destiny is supposed to control. An inflated national vanity is beyond dispute the grand evershadowing fault which shelters and fosters the thronging brood of our national foibles and peccadilloes-petty weaknesses that largely obscure our real greatness, and extinguish y of its brightest beams outright. It is certainly high time that discreet and sensible people should look these preposterous things boldly in the face and frankly condemn them "by precept and example too."

We have been led to these reflections hy some very judicious remarks in the Buffalo Commercial upon the subject of mortuary extravagancea kird of flourish which we are inclined to rank among the more prominent and pernicious of our national follies. It cannot be justly denied that there is at present a deplorable tendency to pageantry and display in the last sad honors we pay to the dead. It is painfully apparent wherever we turn. It glares upon us on all sides. It is flaunted by every stately funeral cortege (swelled by idle threnodoi) that winds in solemn pomp through our cities, it gleams mockingly from the sumptuous coffins that inclose the deceased, it smiles grimly from the magnificent mausoleums that inclose the sumptuous coffius, it lingers unmistakably in the luxurious though somber folds that enrobe the survivors in empty, ostentatious honor of the departed. It is a naked, indisputable evil, which nearly everywhere insults the heavens. Those simple and beautiful solemnities, prompted at once by true feeling and instinctive taste, ere now so prevaand vital, are beginning to live only in literature or the green nooks of the country, where it seems as if everything simple and beautiful goes forth to die. We can but esteem this a most alarming indication of the decline of public virtue and of the complete and utter perversion of the rational sensibilities.

The earnest simplicity of the earlier days of the republic, which steeped all ceremonies in the living idea, and atoned for the absence of æsthetic refinement by the freshness and spirit of the solemnization, has evidently faded into mere hollow mockery, leaving us magnificence without nature, and pretensions without sincerity or grace. We are coming to die a - gaudily as we live, and to retire within the tomb with the same heartless and tasteless splendors that attend our pathways to its portals. Of all places and junctures, surely the grave and the burial of the dead are the most utterly unfit for garish show. To suffer unhallowed pride and vanity to intrude upon occasions of such dread and yet sweet sublimity, and to stamp them with the vulgar seal of pomp, is the coarsest and most desplcable species of sacrilege. Nothing can be more distasteful and offensive to a wellregulated mind, or more revolting to one of refined and generous sympathies. None but soulless creatures of fashion could sauction or endure it. It is worse than barbarous, for barbarians are far superior to this and other like monstrous desecrations hy virtue of their harbarism. The savage walks with nature, but he does not profane her. It is the exclusive privof civilized man thus to disgrace enlight- of a house-"Not a drop more, gentlemen, not enment, and dishonor and sully the nohler in- a drop more." stincts of his race.

Unfortunately, these repulsive exhibitions of extravagance are not less the monument of a glitter are hut the unhealthy brightness of de- that city.

| cay-the hectic glow and flush upon the cheek of the invalid. They imply that a nation is losing or has lost its youthful truth and ingenuousness, and is fast lapsing into a condition of luxurious mockery and form. History is filled with significant warnings against this unseemly extravagance. Tacitus drew a brief and pregnant rebuke of Roman luxury and magnificence, in this respect, from the wholesome simplicity of the German, and both Pliny and Plutarch that shone forth in Rome's decadenhave marched to her downfall by the blazing torches of her costly funeral processions. And it is hardly a figure of speech to say that the graves of all buried nations gleam with fear- tains harsh and offensive features made so by ful lessons upon the perils of this most ridiculous and pompous custom.

It is a melancholy thing that our nation should display so many signs of weakness and decline in the very morning of its career, and yet the fact is unquestionable. We are already in some respects the scandal instead of the model of the sense and cherished instincts of the people. Under God, our national salvation lies in fidelity to those bright and exalted impulses, and in the thorough development of our spiritual as the complement and crown of our material and intellectual natures. Among all the false usages and customs of our country none outrages these Palladian instincts more harshly than the one we have just condemned. And we invoke the spiritual teachers of the land, and the influential laymen of their churches, to unite with enlightened persons elsewhere in frowning down and trampling upon the superfluous, vile show. Discerning, patriotic citizens everywhere should condemn and proscribe it, for their own sakes, and for the sake of the future of their country. It is a reproach and tarnish upon our civilization, and should be proudly spurned as unworthy of an earnest and rational people, struggling gracefully toward a loftier and juster culture. We are no admirers of sumptuary laws upon the statute book, but there is an unwritten sumptuary law in the bosom of every true man and woman which we do admire heartily, and to which we gladly refer this flaunting offense for reproof and correction.

Many pieces of poetry have been written upon this subject, but never anything more truly heautiful than the following:

[For the Louisviile Bulletin.]

The following lines were suggested by reading a description of a species of lily found upon the 1sthmus of Pausma. The falls, the lid opens and discloses the fae simile of a snow white dove nestling in the heart of the lily. It is so rare and beautiful that the natives look upon it with superstitious reverence, and call it the Espirita Santo, or Iloly Dove:

THE STAR AND THE LILY. It was an evening ealm and stiil
As e'er held earth in silvery fold,
The azure curtains of the sky Were fringed with gleaming gems of gold, The wandering airs of night grow faint
Upon the silver lighted stream,
The fragrant breath of roses came
Like thoughts that weave a poet's dream,

Soft clouds were floating off to play Like glorious birds just loosed from Heaven, While high above their fleecy folds There gleamed a loving star of even. Each night his smiling rays came out

And sought a lowly murmuring stream, Along whose banks, soft fleeked with light, Fair lifies drooped their heads to dream One lily, paie and dewy-eyed.

Wood by the moonlight colored air,
Poured from her heart the wistful love
That long had lain entangied there. 'Mid edors, gleams, and marmurings That to the shrine of night belong, She breathed in fragrant, passioned sighs The love that thrilled her soul to song.

That loving etar, so pure and bright, Yet still she raised her heavenward eves And brimmed her lify cup with tes And when his beams came trembling down To kiss the wave that lared her feet, She lowly drooped her snowy brow, Tili wave and star and fily meet; That loving toneh so wildly thrilled She wished nor prayed for greater bliss Than fouldy look the love she felt And nightly bend beneath his kins.

When morning came with blushing hues, The star would paie npon her heart, But not the memory of his beams— They grew to be of life a part. E'en in the garish hours of noon She felt as though he lingering were, But daylight's voil of goiden hue Concealed his ioving smiles from her. Thus passed the weary, lagging hours-Pale flower below! sad star above!-Tili pitying angei from the sky
Stooped down and blessed their dream of love.

He took the star-beams from their throne And placed them in the lily's breast, Where now no more they wandering roam, But there forever sweetly rest; A tiny vase of fragrance rare Contains that giving star of love, Unfold its leaves, and, nestling there. Behold a enowy, spotless dove; Enshrined within the lily's cup. With foided wing and dewy eyes, It seems to me a sacred thing, An embiem sent from Paradise-A beanteous type of woman's love, Deep hidden from the world apart, A dove that never tries its wing, But broods and nestles in the heart.

Some of our friends in Virginia keep sending us, by telegraph and otherwise, returns of the late elections in that State. We beg leave to assure them that we have received a plenty. We don't want another item. Though we are a perfectly abstemious man, we can say in this case as the poor fellow did, who, after taking a little too much liquor, fell in a hard rain with his mouth directly under a spout from the roof

We are not at all surprised that our recent suggestions for a compromise between the North and the South are violently assailed by Herald, the Pittsburg Gazette, &c., and by the nullification and disunion organs of the South. Such Northern and such Southern organs fought side by side in 1850, and we expect them to fight side by side now. They are at home only by have attested the excessive formal splendor the side of each other. They are alike hostile to everything calculated to establish the harmocy, as if lighting her mournfully to ruin. ny of the country. We could not expect to win Indeed, the Eternal City may be said almost to their approval except by aiding and abetting their treasonable designs.

The editor of the Louisville Democrat says that we "admit that the fugitive slave law conthe South in sheer wantonness." There is not one particle of truth in this statement. We have not said at any time that in our opinion the fugitive slave law contains a harsh feature or a feature justly offensive to the North. What we have said, is, that, if the true men, the honest and sincere patriots, of the North are of opinion world. But we still have faith in the sterling that the law in some of its features is either harsh or unconstitutional, and if they desire to procure in a proper spirit modifications not at all inconsistent with the effective and prompt restoration of fugitives, we have no doubt that an amicable adjustment of the matter might he made, and, that the Northern and Southern members of the great American party might agree upon the terms. We have not expressed any thought of our own that a solitary provision of the law is harsh; but we have signified our belief, that, if true-hearted patriots in the North entertain such an opinion, it might be well to respect their views, provided this could be done without making the law one whit less efficient in the accomplishment of its object than it

We cited the remarks made to us by Mr, Clay as to the drafting of the fugitive slave law by the committee of the Senate, but we did not undertake to endorse those remarks. We were satisfied to repeat them correctly, and to leave them to rest upon their own authority and that of their utterer. We had no especial means of judging of their justice or their injustice. We knew nothing of the circumstances of the drawing up of the bill in the committee. We did not know that Mr. Clay was not in Washington at the time until he himself told us so. Our object in citing his conversation was to show that some patriotic men of the South are probably of opinion that the fugitive slave law, if the subject were approached in a conciliatory and patriotic spirit, might perhaps he rendered less offensive to the North in some of its features than it now is without the slightest abatement of its practical force and efficacy. But Mr. Clay did not say that the slave law "contains harsh and offensive features made so by the South in sheer wantonness." He expressed his belief that harsh features were inserted in the bill in committee through the influence of a single member in order to make it obnoxious, but he did not speak of the action of "the South" in the matter at all, and we have not quoted him as speaking of the South. The suggestion of the editor of the Democrat, that, if a member of the Senate's committee procured the insertion of provisions in the fugitive slave bill to make it offensive, such fellows as William Lloyd Garrison and Theodore Parker are very nearly excusable for their furious war against the rights, the property, and the very existence of the South, is worthy-of its source. Of one and all of those who say or intimate that we have said or intimated that the South should or would, even for the sake of peace. tolerate any such modification of the fugitive slave law as would in the least degree impair its present energy, we have only to state that they are guilty of falsehood and calumny.

The editor of the Democrat says the fugitive slave law was passed after all the other compromise measures, and he often declares that it was all the South got by the compromise. Why does he forget to add, that, if his influence had prevailed, the South would have failed to get even that? Why does he never remind his readers of his having proclaimed, while the law was pending and while the result was doubtful, that its passage was of less consequence than some folks thought, and that the old law would answer every purpose?

We ask if it is not hoth strange and provoking. that an editor who thus, at the very crisis of the fugitive slave law's fate, emptied his whole water-cart of cold water upon it, should now presume to assail us as false to the country because we have expressed a hope that the true patriots of the two sections of the country might be able to agree upon such modifications of the law as would preserve its whole force and at the same time allay sectional excitement. What sort of an editor is this, who didn't care to have the law enacted at all, but who nevertheless thinks there's horrible treason in the hare suggestion of touching one of its features even for the salvation of the Union?

For the last week or two the residents on Third street heve have been subjected to the most horrible stench. The scavengers commence running their carts usually hefore 10 o'clock They should not be permitted to come out till after 12 o'clock. We hope the city authorities will see to this.

The drawer of the El Dorado Exchange, corner of Jefferson and Third streets, was robrary absence of the bar-keeper.

When Gov. Gardner's veto of the "Personal Liherty hill" was read in the Massachusetts Senate, a genius, who rejoices in the the abolition organs in the North, the New York stinging name of ALBEE, rose and delivered Tribune, the Buffalo Express, the Cleveland himself of a great deal of nonsense, although it is likely he did not exhaust his stock of it. Among other absurd things that he uttered was the following:

It was time the people understood their rights. If the rights of trial by jury and habeas corpus are lost to the people of Massachusetts they ought to know it. No one was shocked by the unconstitutionality of the constant incarceration of Northern men in Southern prisons.

The only reply we have for such stuff as this is to ask if fugitive slaves are the people of Mas-

We mentioned the other day that a body had been found in the Ohio river at Evansville, and gave a description of it. It was doubtless that of Mr. M. McFarland, of Charlestown, Mass., a cabin passenger on the steamer Fashion, wno fell overboard on the 17th inst. near Evansville and was drowned. We presume that the articles found on his body, among which was a gold watch, and the money, are in possession of the coroner at Evansville, who held an inquest on the body.

The river is falling. Last evening there were 5 feet 6 inches water in the canal. The thermometer yesterday stood at 81.

Steamboat Explosion .- We learn from a correspondent, that the new steamer Red Hill was completely wrecked at Lee's Mills, Moultonbo-ro', N. H., Wednesday evening, by the explosion of her boiler. No lives were lost, but several persons were severely injured; among whom were Mr. George Randall, Mr. Calvin Moulton, and a boy, son of Mr. Jeremiah C. Smith. Mr. J. F. H. Watson was thrown high into the air, and fell into the water, injuring him severely. A portion of the boiler, weighing 2,000 to 3,000 pounds, was thrown fifty or sixty rods, tearing up the earth where it fell, in a remarkable manmer. The Red Hill was built to run between Moultonboro,' Tuftonboro,' Alton Bay, and Lake Village in Guilford.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES AT THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH .- Elder D. P. Henderson, of Lewis county, Mo., still continues his nightly meetings at the Christian church, northeast corner of Walnut and Fourth streets. The interest is unabated. This earnest, truthful, and noblehearted Christian teacher has been nightly engaged for over a month in efforts to present the gospel of Jesus Christ to the people, on the precise terms on which it began in the hands of the divinely-commissioned Apostles and he is heard with an unfaltering interest. The commodious edifice in which he labors is filled nightly with a large portion of many of the best and most intelligent people in this community, and we never saw any attention to a speaker that exceeded the attent:on bestowed upon the efforts of Elder Henderson. The immense crowd go for religious worship and instruction and the utmost quietness and calmness reign during the services. Between sixty and seventy persons have been added to the congregation since Elder Henderson commenced his labors, and many of them, who are known to us, would be an ornament to any society. Large numbers of young persons, learned in their Bibles, adorned with the noblest virtues of youth, and loved and respected wherever they are known are among these additions. We congratulate our friend Elder Henderson upon the rare success of his labors, and we earnestly hope that his useful life will long be spared to continue these happy results. The services will continue to-night, and that which was "foolishness to the Greeks and a stumbling-block to the Jews" eighteen hundred years ago, will again be preached for the edification and salvation of the people of Louisville.

COAL AND IRON IN TENNESSEE. - We have reccived a letter from an esteemed friend at Chattanooga, Tennessee, in which he alludes to the valuable deposits of coal and iron lying in that region along the Tennessee river and also upon the line of the Nashville and Chattanooga railroad. Our correspondent says: "I may say something ere long with regard to the coal and iron deposits near this place. In your coal articles in the Journal a few numbers back, you seem to have overlooked the fact that some of the finest coal-fields in the West lie in the immediate vicinity of Chattanooga. You may judge of the estimation in which they are held by two simple facts. One-sixth of one of them was sold three weeks ago for $25,000 cash; since then, the same property, including all the interests, has been leased for fourteen years for $138,000, the lessees being bound to make the most substantial improvements and fixtures, such as a railway from the mine to the Nashville and Chattanooga railroad," &c.

We will remark to our correspondent that the coal articles he refers to were written merely for the purpose of bringing to notice the coal and iron deposits lying near to or adjoining the Mississippi and Ohio rivers. The tributaries did not come within the scope of our articles. We shall be pleased to hear from our friend on this subject of coal whenever it suits him to KNOW-NOTHINGS IN COURT. - At the opening of the trial of a foreigner for murder, in the circuit court of Prince George's county, Va., a juror being on his voir dire to ascertain whether he was competent, the counsel for the prisoner asked the juror if he was a Know-Nothing. The question was objected to by the Commonwealth, and an argument ensued, when the judge overruled the question, but allowed the counsel for the prisoner to inquire of the juror "whether he belonged to any society or association of individuals which might bias his judgment in the trial of a foreigner?" The prisoner's counsel declined to put this question. During the dis- to showing that the place where the writ from cussion, several of the jurors, who had been accepted, admitted that they were members of the American party, and thereupon Mr. Collier stated that he had no objection to the most searching scrutiny which could be instituted and conducted, with the consent of the court, for the purpose of ascertaining from those jurors, who admitted they were of the American party what secret objects they had, if any, hostile to foreigners. But the counsel for the prisoner did not institute this inquiry.

THE BRECKINRIDGE COAL .- A considerable quantity of this extraordinary coal was taken to New Orleans a few weeks ago, and we have copied the most eulogistic notices of it from the papers of that city. We learn from the New Orleans Bulletin, that, on the 15th ult., the ship Forest King cleared from that port for New York with eight hundred tons of it, and that this was considered the beginning of a large and important trade. The only New Orleans paper that did not at first give a highly favorable notice of the Breckinridge coal was the Delta, and that paper has since corrected its notice. The Delta of the 18th ult. says:

The Breckinridge Coal .- Some time since, we mentioned the fact that we had tried a specimen of the Breckinridge coal, which has created a considerable excitement in the market of late and found the results of the experiment any-thing but beneficial. A thick smoke arose through which smut y particles floated to and tro. and a smothering sensation was experienced by all within range of the unpleasant influence. We have discovered since, however, that these phenomena were altogether the consequences of the small capacity of he flues of our boiler, and that, under favorable circumstances, the coal is a valuable and be utiful ma erial for firing It burns clearly, brightly, and without waste; indeed it leaves no ash behnd worth mentioning; and the heat generated by its action is unusually searching and intense. It seems to possess the best qualities of the English cannel possess the best qualities of the English call, possess the best qualities of the English call, with others peculiar to itself. This is an example of the danger of hasty conclusions, and we are willing to confess that we were a tritted in condensation of the GREAT THREE-MILE RACE-VANDAL THE WINNER.—On Saturday, the last day of the Spring races over the Association Course, the glory of the week culminated. This was the day set apart for the three-mile race, in which it was expected that the celebrated race-horse Frankfort and the no less distinguished Vandal would be entered, and all looked forward to the race with the deepest interest.

At 12 o'clock the four horses were brought to the stand, all of them looking remarkably well. Perritt drew the track, and at the tap of the drum they all went off in fine style, Perritt and Vandal running for the lead, and Frankfort and the Wagner trailing. Vandal soon passed Perritt and held his position, under a steady pull, to the end of the heat, and though his gal-lant rival struggled through every mile, he came home in 5 minutes and 364 seconds, winning the heat handily, Perritt being second, Frankfort third, and the Wagner distanced. Frankfort and Vandal cooled off well, but it was evident that Perritt was "done for," and when the drum called them up for the second heat, leave was requested to withdraw him, but could not be granted, and when the drum tapped his rider ran him a few yards beyond the score when he held him up, leaving the conflict to Vandal and Frankfort alone. From this mo-ment the excitement became intense. Frankfort had obtained the lead and track at the start, and Vandal was at his side threatening to pass him at every instan; until they reached the point in the track known as the cowpens, where he shot ahead of his noble competitor. Frank-fort rallied instantly, and kept up the most terrible struggle until the end of the heat that wever witnessed. They flew by the stand a length apart, around the turn, up the back strength, and down to the stand again in the same position, and as Frankfort passed the stand in the second mile, his rider urged him with the steel and whip, and though he answered like a true thoroughbred, it was of no avail. Vandal still kept the lead, and seemed to run with more zest than any horse that we ever saw. Their old position was maintained in the third mile and never varied but once, and that was up the turn as they entered the home stretch. Here stood one of Frankfort's trainers, and, as the rider passed, he told him to drive his horse home, and he did it too.

For a moment the black jacket of Harper's rider was plainly seen creeping swiftly forward to Vandal's flank, but this lasted but for a moment-Vandal shook him off and came home the winner by about two lengths in 5 minutes and 33 seconds, thus ending the fastest three-mile race, all things considered, ever run in the United States. Vandal also made the best two consecutive miles in this race ever run. The first mile of the second heat was made in 1:46, the second mile in 1:51, making a two-mile heat of 2:37, which has never been beaten. In speaking of Vandal as we have done, we necessarily involve the praise of Frankfort also. The same remarks about weight and over-distance apply in his case, and render his race as good a one as that of Brown Dick, the champion three-miler of the Metairie, for we suppose that Frankfort's time in Saturday's race was about 5:39 and 5:34.

In reviewing the performances of the entire week, we feel justified in saying that a finer week's racing never occurred in the Union. There were twenty-one heats run, and only one of these can be called slow—3:52 There were eleven mile heats run and all were under 1:50 and six out of the eleven were under 1:473, and one half mile was made by Frank Harper, Mr. Murphy's horse, in 48 seconds, being the fastest half mile ever run. There were 8 two-mile heats, 7 of which were under 3:50, and 4 of which were under 3:44. Of the winners during the week, there were 3 Giencoes, 2 Wagners, 1 Yorkshire, 1 Bulwer, and 1 Vincent Noite; and Kentucky has made good her claim to the title of the race-horse region against the world.

But we have already said more on this subject than we intended in the outset, and will only add that Vandal was bred by Dr. B. W. Dudley. of this county, and Frankfort by Mr. John Harper, of Woodford.

U. S. CIRCUIT COURT .- The case of Yeager v. Roe, to which we alluded yesterday, was tain the examination, which was chiefly devoted the Kentucky Court was served was above lowwater mark in Indiana, Judge McLean gave his instruction to the jury, which we think of so much importance that we present an abstract of it as nearly as we can recollect it.

The Judge said this was a most important case, and, notwithstanding the apparent triviality of the examination, involved some questions of the greatest magnitude. It affected the c mmerca of every State north of the Ohio, bordering upon it. That stream from its source to its mouth was probably 1200 miles long, and about onefourth of the internal commerce of the country amounting to $300,000,000 was carried upon it The commerce of Cincinnaii alone was $100,-000,000. And the question in this case controled the whole of that vast sum. For, said he, if Kentucky and Virginia own to low-water mark on the north side of the river, they own all the wharves, improvements, and property below that line, with all the power of taxation and control that any State possesses over the property within her limits.

He said it had always been his opinion that this question of jurisdiction over navigable streams between bordering States should not be decided upon narrow technical grounds, but upon broad national reasons. The Ohio was a national stream, and the commerce upon it beionged to the nation, not to Kentucky or Virginia. It was legislated for (he should rather have said, looking at the way improvement bills are vetced, not legislated for) by the National Government, and its jurisdiction determined by national considerations.

The Judge then alluded very briefly to the ground upon which this claim of jurisdiction was based, and concluded by instructing the jury that, if they found that the wharf-boat, upon which the defendant was standing when served with process, was attached to the Indiana shore, they should find that the service was within the contractions and the service was within the service was served. within the State of Indiana, and therefore of no validity. The jury retired, but, as their verdict under the courc's instruction could not be otherwise than for the defendant, we didn't stay to hear it .- Indianapolis Journal.

Wheat .- We have been furnished with the results of two experiments, tried on different farns in this county, with wheat. One farmer raised 10 bushels of Riley wheat to the acre; and on equally as good land, but no better, he raised 19 bushels of the Mediterranean to the acre. somewhat precipitate in contemnation of the article. Having seen and tested the coal since our firs exp riment, we regard it as our duty to make the amende, and recommend i' heartily (as we can conscientiously) to all our readers yielded 15 hushels to the acre.

Madison Courter.

A WHITE MAN WHIPPED-DAMAGES RECOV- Pensions and Bounty Land. ERED -A legal friend of ours, who has just returned from Frankfort, informs us of a singular case decided in the Circuit Court there on Saturday. Some time ago a man was tried by two justices for petty larceny, who, after consulting the constable in the district as to their power in the case, ordered him to receive ten lashes. The sentence was carried into execution, notwithstanding the imploration of the wife of the accused. He brought suit for damages in the Franklin Circuit Court on the ground that the justices exceeded their jurisdiction, and the jury returned a verdict awarding damages in $800-$300 against the constable and one of the justices and $200 against the other justice.

Cool - William B. Fairfield has been arrested for courting and engaging to marry a young woman residing in a street at Newburyport next to that in which he lived with his wife.

A LUCRATIVE STATION .- The Newburyport Herald alludes to the new law for the appointment of a person to purchase liquors for the town agents who are obliged to purchase of him, be being allowed to charge 5 per cent. additional to the cost on all liquors thus disposed of,

If the law was enforced, so that this agent could have the supplying of the whole State, as is designed, we should judge that his commissions could not fall short of $40,000 at least that is, that the State agent's per-centage would amount to $15,000 per annum more than the salary of the President of the United States.

The Boston Journal says:

We understand that A. S. Mansfield, of Dorchester, has been appointed by the Governor and Council commissioner, under the law passed at the last ession of the Legislature, to purchase and supply to town and city agents pure liquors for sale by them under the new liquor law. His place of business must be in Boston.

The New York Times has a correspondent at Sebastopol. From his last letter we make the following extract:

From what information I can obtain, I should idge that the total number of French in the Crimea, and at Constantinople and its vicinity is from 135,000 to 140,000 men, of whom 130, 000 may be effective. It is with extreme diffi-culty that I have obtained this little positive information, and were its source known it might lead to trouble. If there were such things as political parties out here, I could say with a sincere heart that the French, both officers and soldiers, are the greatest "know-nothings" in regard to their movements of any body of men ever saw. Our "know-nothings" would b would be "small potatoes" in comparison. I admire the system, and if the English would only follow it. I think it would be productive of great results In conducting a siege like the present one, secresy is a valuable acquisition.

A ROBBER SHOT .- Last night about eleven o'clock a young man who had been hanging about the Canada House at Fort Erie, k pt by Col. Lewis, made an attempt to enter the room of a boarder named Russell, and was discovered by Col. Lewis, who confrontedshim; the fellow drew a revolver saying, "Hands off—I am enough for six of you," and retreated into an adjoining room, locked himself in, made his escape by jumping from a window and running along a roof. He thus eluded his pursuers and afterwards proceeded down the river bank and broke into the house of Mr. Murray, deputy collector of the por', and succeeded in taking from the pock ts of Mr. M.'s clothes, a wallet containing $8 or $10, and and a pair of boots. His operations in the house aroused Mr. M., who rushed out of the house and gave the alarm to a neighbor. Mr. John Mayrood who aların to a neighbor, Mr. John Maygood, who immediately loaded a double barreled shot gun and started in pursuit. In the meantime a report was abroad in the village that Townsend was in

The thief was making rapid progress up the river shore toward the Brantford Railway depot, his pursuers following close upon him. When he reached the mill race, just above the depot, he jumped into a boat moored close by, cut adrift, seized a piece of slab, and started out into the stream. Another boat was soon obtained by the pursuing party, launched, and chase given. His skiff reached Squaw Island, and when within four feet of the shore, he leap ed into the water and waded about waist deep to land, ran and secreted himself in the grass The boat of the pursuers was but a moment behind, and was soon ashore. Two or three leaped ashore, and can towards the spot where he was seen to drop down, and as the foremost had come within two or three teet of the robber, he raised himself up, presented a revolver and snapped it twice, but it missed fire, and Mr. Maygood, who was immediately behind, pointing his gun at him, shot him, as it afterwards proved, through the heart, killing him iustantly The body was placed in the boat and carried back to Fort Erie. The man is 5 feet 6½ inches tall, rather slim, dark complexioned, hair cut very short, had the appearance of having been shaved. Mr. M.'s wallet was discovered in his pocket. Also an Allen's revolver, with two of the barrels loaded. Mr. M's hoots were also found on his feet. He was dressed in a black coat, and two pairs of coarse pants.

There were one or two present this morning who said they hrd seen Townsend, and knew his looks well enough to be certain it was not

The body answers almost precisely the description, given in a handbill we have een, of one lately escared from Auburn prison, James Anderson, who was sent from Herkimer county. Buffalo Com.

On Thursday last, the draw in the O. & M. R. R. bridge was swung for the first time. The work was entirely completed in the forenoon, and between 1 and 2 o'clock it was swung Nothing could have been more complete than was the first trial of so large and ponderous a piece of machinery. The draw is 76 feet long, and one end resting on pivots at the foot of a powerful double tower which is substantially supported by wooden and iron braces and curbs. From the top of this tower to the other end of the draw are attached two iron rods, forming the hppothenuse of a right angled triangle, and works freely in loops at either end.

From the same place on the top of the towe two other iron rods in like manner support the draw at midway. With these fixtures the whote fabric swings horizontally on its pivots at one end; and, notwithstanding its immense weight and the comparative roug ness of he materials of which it is constructed it works with the precision of the most delicate and finest finished machinery, and returns again to its place without the perceivable variation of a hair's breadth.
This speaks highly for the plan of the draw, as well as for the careful skill displayed in framing and erection by Mr. Gardner and his assistants. THE undersigned will prepare el ims fer Bounty Land or Pensions under any of the accs of Mongress. He will also ny and sell Land Warrants. ISHAM HENDERSON. Louisville Journal Office. LATEST NEWS.

Foreign News .- The telegraph brings Liverpool dates to the 12th. The most important tem is the resignation of Gen. Canrobert.

Thermometer to-day 80.

We understand that some miscreant cut pose a raft of timber, belonging to the enterprising firm of J. N. Breeden & Co., worth $10,000 or $12,000, last night, and no vestige of it is to be seen on or below the falls.

THE MINSTRELS.—We are informed that the band of minstrels now performing at Mozart Hall are fine musicians. To-morrow night they will repeat the Toy Polka. They cannot remain here longer than the present week.

notices the appearance of bogus railroad tickets. They are said to be "well calculated to deceive."

THE STREET SWEEPING MACHINE. - Messrs. Smith, Seckel, Stebbins, & Co. will make a trial of their Street Cleaning and Sweeping Machines this afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock, on Main and Sixth streets. The machine has been thoroughly tested in New York, and its efficiency has been fully established. Some opposition has however been manifested. The Journal of Commerce says of it:

and take precautions to prevent the formation of mud; and in this way, have taught our contractors how to manage. The machines do not work well in wet weather; brushes and shovels are then required. In dry weather, and especially after the bulk of the dirt has been removed, they are complete, one being equal to twenty men. The men who now work under ordi-nary contractors have all at once become more efficient than they were—the result of competition. Thirty men do as much work now as fifty did formerly.

The price paid to Smith, Seckel & Co., for aciual and efficient work, is precisely the same that was paid under the contract system for very little work, after open competition and bids. The Mayor deemed it best to allow Smith, Seckel, & Co. to perform one of the broken contracts, which by its term expires in July. On its expiration, the most powerful efforts will be made to prevent the further use of this system, to which attention should be turned by all who desire the blessing of clean streets-one of the greatest which our municipal government can JUDICIAL DECISIONS .- The Supreme Court of Indiana has decided that whenever a person shall die from an injury resulting from the negligence or unskillfulness of any of the officers or servants of a railroad company, or the inefficiency of their bridges, cars, or locomotives, action for damages cannot be instituted by the wife or minor children, but by the administrator. The same court has decided that railroad companies are not liable for the destruction of stock running at large at the crossing of a public road, when the injury is done without negligence, inasmuch as the company would have no authority to fence up the road.

has recently been decided. The King of Prussia brought action against Felix Coste, administrator of Frederick William Kupper, a post officer, claiming 7,400 thalers, moneys alleged to have been embezzled by the deceased from the post-office of the King, which moneys belonged to various subjects of the King, and were, after the embezzlement, reimbursed by the King to the parties who were sufferers by the embezziement of Kupper. The court held:

That the petition did not show any cause of action, at common law; that the payment of money to the true owners, by the King, did not, at common law, authorize the King to recover it of the defendant; and that this court had no jurisdiction over the questions as to the extent powers of the King of Prussia in his sovereign capacity, to create a legal liability against a party by the exercise of his will in any form; or as to the power of the King, as a sov-ereign, to decree that Kupper was liable to pay him as sovereign; that while the King could sue in this court in his corporate capacity, waiving his sovereignty, for the recovery of any demand recognised by our laws, yet in a case like the present, where the action is based unon the owers of the King as a sovereign of a foreign State, he must prosecute his claim before that State, he must prosecute his claim before that tribunal having the sole jurisdiction of such questi ns, and a State court cannot take cognizance of them.

Judgment was rendered for the defendant.

Agricultural Division of the Patent Office Six-weeks' Corn, or Forty-days' Maize .- There have been received at the Pat-nt Office several bushels of forty-days' maize, or Indian corn, from the south of Spain, reported to ripen in six weeks after planting. It is designed to be distributed for experiment in the higher latitudes of the United States, as well as on the elevated districts of the Allegheny and Rocky mountains. The Russian sorties, on the night of the 11th, advanced toward the works of the left. The attack was immediately repulsed with considerable loss.

A short truce was granted on the evening of the 10th to allow the Russians to bury their dead in front of the Allies' advances. Gorischakoff telegraphs that the allies on the 5th and 6th were occupied in augmenting their batteries and reinforcing their approaches against the central and bastion. The French Government, it was understood, had received dispatches announcing heavy rains.

The trenches were full of water and operations suspended thereby.

Count Caronel, the Austrian Commander-in-Chief had proclaimed marshal law in the Principali ies. A new manifesto of the Czar orders another levy of 12 men to every 1,000 in 17 Western provinces. It will be completed by the end of July.

Indications of a more intimate relationship between Austria and Prussia were apparent. An armed neutrality was becoming more and more probable An important conference between the representatives of the two Powers had been held. Sweden, it is said, has ordered an immediate enrollment of her militia.

The French Baltic squadron had united with the English fleet and was pushing forward. The Moniteur publishes the following dispatch from Canrobert, announcing his resignation: My shattered health, no longer allowing me to continue the chief command, duty towards my sovereign and my country, compels me to ask you to transfer the command to Gen. Pelisser, a skillful and experienced leader. The army, which I leave with him, is intact inured to a full confidence. I beseech the Emperor to have the place of General of Division.

The minister replies that the terms are accepted, and gives Canrobert the command of the A dispatch from Canrobert, dated May 16,

Lord Elenborough's motion, expressing a want of confidence in the ministers, was up in speech against the ministers. The admission of formidable power, which wielded public optnion, and denunciations of making appointments to favor instead of to merit, was the principle argument. Lord Panmure replied and others continued the debate.

The vote stood 71 for and 181 against.
Pianori was executed at 5 o'clock in the morning refusing to make any developments, and ex-claiming, "Vive la Republique" just as the knife fell. It is said that the Emperor was about to issue a manifesto stating his reasons for not preceeding to the siege of war.

FOREIGN NEWS BY THE AMERICA.-Th. whole of the proceedings of the Vienna conferwhole of the proceedings of the Vienna conferences have been made public. The principal documents, without the enclosures, would occupy a whole page of our paper. The Times, in for the vigorous prosecution of the war. Inspeaking of the papers in reference to the Vienna Conference, says:

Of course, as every one knew previously, th third point, relative to the Russian power in the Black Sea, was the great source of contention, the point upon which the whole interest of the conference turned, and nothing can show the utter hypocrisy of Russia in entering into these negotiations so much as the document which Prince Gortschakoff read on thu 21st of April, to the effect that Turkey was exposed to dauger from Russia.

It concluded by declaring that Russia would not object to a revision of the treaty of 1841, in order to open to all nations the passage of the Bosphorus and the Dardanelles. Beyond this concession, Russia would not advance, and, after another offer of another equally worthless kind about closing the Straits at the pleasure of th Porte, the Western ambassadors retired from the conference with the declaration that their instructions were exhausted.

The Times has a leader upon the effect of the present struggles upon the English nation, which concludes as follows:

The present mode of manufacturing statesmen almost exclusively out of the aristocratic ele ments must cease and determine. Look at Lord Palmerston's cabinet, composed almost without a single exception of this class. In fact, no cabinet in the worst days of Toryism ever reflected less the popular feeling. These outrages on common sense and common decency gave rise to the city of London meeting, to carry out the great want of the country—Administrative re-

England and the War .- Our readers are already aware that the electic telegraph is now at work from Sebastopol to don. Under the dark and foggy Euxine the wire runs from Balaklava to the, bold headland of Kalakria, which juts out into the sea about 14 miles northeast of Varna. From this point, it is carried along the shoals to the monastery about six miles from the town, and thence it is buried underground to the station near the house of the British consul. It is as certain how far the use of the submarine wire will be granted to individuals. This depends entirely on the English government, who have laid down this part of the line and have its en tire management. There are at present four tele-graph stations between Varna and Paris, these be reduced to three by the junction of Rutschuk and Giurgevo, when there is every reason to believe that intelligence from the Crimea will be communicated in two hours to the cabinets of Paris and London.

The government has shown some disposition to put the public in possossion of some of their dispatches received by telegraph. The following is from the London Morning Chronicle of the latest date:

Lord Panmure presents his compliments to the editor of the Morning Chronicle, and has great pleasure in transmitting the enclosed in-telligence, which has this day reached him from Lord Raglan. War Department, May 11, 1855.

Sebastopol, May 10.—The Russians made a sortie with a large body of troops on our right advanced trench this morning, but were driven back immediately. A second and similar at-tempt shared the same fate. Nothing could be better than the conduct of the troops who took part in the affair. The loss of the enemy was serious.

Other dispatches from the seat of war are as follows:

Sebastopol, May 5, 1855, 9 P. M .- The enemy assaulted the advanced trench of our right attack, last night, but were repulsed promptly. Our loss was-3 killed and 20 wounder RAGLAN.

Before Sebastopol, April 24.—Nothing material has occurred since I made my report to your lordst.ip on the 21st inst. The Russian rifle pit immediately in front of that which was taken on the night of the 19th, was destroyed by a party of volunteers on the 21st inst. These were of volunteers on the 21st inst. These were headed by Lieutenant and Adjutant Walker, of the 30th regiment, who is stated to be an excellent officer, and to have conducted himself on the occasion in the most spirited manner. The pit was found to be empty, and being useless, was immediately levelled and filled in. The enemy did not interrupt the work. I enclose the list of casualties, which, I regret to say, is heavy. The nearer we approach the place, the more loss it to be apprehended; hitherto it has been less than might have been expected.

I have, &c., RAGLAN.

A despatch has been received at St. Petersburg. from Prince Gortschakoff, dated Sebastopol, the 3d instant, which confirms the announcement which has already been made of the advantages obtained by the allied army on the 2d inst. however states that the damage inflicted by the fire of the allied forces had been effectually repaired during the night.

The Paris Independent speaks of a new plan of campaign in the Crimea, already mentioned by some foreign journals. It is said that the allies, leaving the army of reserve (now arriving in the Crimea) to defend the works before Sebastopol, will take the field in the direction of Simferopol, and attack the Russian army in that neighborhood. If successful, they will then effect a junction with Omar Pacha, and by means of a strong force posted at Perekop, make themselves masters of the Crimea. They will then invest Sebastopol and blockade the garrison into submission.

The Moniteur of May 9 publishes the following:

Gen. Canrobert, in a letter addressed to the Emperor, dated April 28th, thus expresses him-

"It is with pleasure that I announce to your Majesty that the English army, always so solid, has become as fine and healthy as it was in the first days of its arrival in the East. It is receiving reinforcements in infantry, in cavalry, and in means of transport. I continue to live on the most cordial terms with Lord Raglan, and the two armies continue to be closely united, and count one upon the other."

On the 25th, 26th, and 27th, the fire on both on the 25th, 25th, and 27th, the life of both sides was suspended, but on the night of the 27th the fire, betn of artillery and small arms, was resumed with great energy.

A Parliamentary return of the English loss in the Crimea shows that 1,368 men of all ranks have been killed and 4,546 wounded; 381 horses were killed, and 1,466 died from other causes.

The Arctic Expedition.—It will gratify our readers to learn that the Enterprise, discovery ship, Capt. Collinson, arrived in safety at Spithead at 9 o'clock on Sunday night, the 6th, after her fearful and unavailing search for the la-mented Sir John Franklin and his gallant comrades. It is said that no less than sour officers of the Enterprise, Commander Phare, Lieutenant Parke, Lieutenant Jago, and the master, Mr. Shields, are under arrest, but on what charge has not been promulgated, nor will it be until it reaches the authorities at the admirality.

Revenue and Expenditure.—On Saturday, 5th, a return was issued of the estimated net and gross revenue, and the estimated expenditure, excluding and including the cost of collection. The net revenue was £86,639,000, and the gross £91,024,951. The expenditure stead of 80,000 men, as was originally intended, being called out next month, there will be 200,000 raised for active service. Another loan will probably be resorted to, one of 250,000,000 francs is spoken of. Pianori, who shot at the Emperor, denied at his trial that he was an agent, or tha he had been under the influence of refugees in London. He said the idea of firing at the Emperor only occurred to him on the day when he made the attempt. He said that the money found upon him was his savings, and neither that nor his arms were given him by others. The court sentenced him to the punishment awarded by the penal code for the crime of parricide.

Two days afterwards, Pianori signed an appeal to the Court of Cessation, which would be decided on the 11th or 12th. It was said that he had agreed to sign a petition for pardon, and hence it was inferred that he could make disclosures.

England.—The latest London and Liverpool papers contain nothing of importance in addi-tion to what has been transmitted by telegraph from Halifax. The European Tines of the 12th says: "The meeting in the city of London on Saturday last, is one of the most important events which has happened in this country for vears. years. The speakers were all men of business, who had left their desks and their countinghouses in obedience to an imperative necessity. For they felt that without a sweeping change in the management of public duties; without the introduction of a sound and healthy system into the Executive government, the star of British Empire would speedily set, to rise no more. In this demand for administrative reform, the nation through its length and breadth, sympathises, and it only requires the great hives of commerce and manufactures to buckle on their armor and support the demand of the London merchants, to ensure the victory. It will be a desperate struggle, but it cannot be protracted if the people are true to themselves.

Bachelors' attentions are particularly invited to this number should not fail to read what Miss Bremer says about ried men.

Reader, are your backet.

They should not fail to read what Miss Bremer says about married men.

Reader, are you a bacholor? If you are, remember marriags is the mother of the world, and preserves kingdoms and sile sittes and churches. Cellbacy, like the sile in the heart of an apple, dwells in perpetual sweetness, hat sits alone, and is considered, and at last dies in singleness; but marriage, like the useful bee, builds a house and gathers sweetness from every flower. Come with me, my bachelor readers, "I have made np my mind to start." If you would be useful, happy prosperons, and honored, journey toward the land of wellock, and when eironmstanees are favorable, take some partner by the hand, onter its precincts, and with an abiding confidence and pure desire, "settle down" in the midst of its springing delights, there to enjoy the sweets and nurse the hables.
